NCACES AWARD WINNERS 2019

Outstanding Subject Matter Program by a Team Award (Tie - 2 awards were given in this category)

Local Food Program Team for their work on the Agritourism Curriculum:

Becky Bowen, Janine Parker, Laura Lauffer, Matt Lenhardt, Greg Traywick, Guido van der Hoeven, Carla Barbieri

The curriculum is a product of the Economic Impacts Work Group of the NC Cooperative Extension Local Food Program Team. This eight module lesson plan helps Extension agents to provide assistance to farmers and growers who are seeking to engage in agritourism activities.

Drs. Krish Eberle-Krish and Kenneth Anderson (both from NCSU Prestage Department of Poultry Science), Dr. KSU Jayarante (NC State Extension) and Dr. Michael Martin (NCSU College of Veterinary Medicine) in recognition for their education and outreach services in the area of zoonotic disease prevention and response with poultry producers. The team has been very instrumental in providing producers with technological options for depopulating laying hens in the event of a notifiable emergency disease outbreak.

Outstanding Subject Matter Program by an Individual Award

Dr. Matthew Vann, Tobacco Extension Specialist

Development and delivery of educational programming for all areas in agronomic production and management of flue-cured and burley tobacco. Since starting in 2015, he has lead the Tobacco Extension Team and has served as a coordinator and trainer for several agriculture agent training events each year. Dr. Vann also assists with Tobacco Short Courses and has collaborated on-farm research with agents in multiple counties which has further developed Extension recommendations for nutrient application and weed management in these regions. He has co-authored several chapters in Flue-Cured Tobacco Guide and multi-guide Burley and Dark Tobacco Production Guide, and several Extension Bulletins focusing to tobacco nutrient management.

Outstanding Specialist Award

Dr. Carl Crozier, Soil Science Specialist

Nominated by Pamlico County for his exceptional experience and advice he has provided to local agents in respect to soil fertility, crop diagnostics, and management of on-farm research trails. The nominator commented about Dr. Crozier's accessibility and helpfulness. He says, "when issues arise, Dr. Crozier will take the time to visit with growers and agents in their individual counties, offering not only consultation, but helping county agents coordinate and resolve issues that may require additional matter expertise..."
