Welcome and Introduction to Focus on Scholarship Presentations (Misty Blue-Terry, President, NC A&T)

Misty discussed benefits for telling success stories succinctly.

Award winners in the Spring will be asked to give a quick Ignite-style talk about their work.

Michele Eley – Application for NCACES 2017 awards is open. Deadline is March 3, 2017. Applications should be sent to Susan Jakes. Michele requested that worthy applicants be informed of this opportunity and encouraged to apply. Nominators do not have to be NCACES members. Agents are welcome and encouraged to apply.

Susan also shared a video by D. Willbanks: www.ignitetalks.io/videos/your-diet-will-fail-and-why-mine-eventually-will

Susan also shared a presentation by Lloyd Singleton, Interim County Extension Director and Florida Friendly Landscaping Agent, University of Florida. Lloyd won an award for best presentation at the 2016 NACDEP Conference. His presentation is in rhyming style on teaching horticulture to inmates in Florida.

Susan introduced next speaker:

Bryce Lane, Lecturer, Alumni Distinguished Undergraduate Professor

Bryce Lane discussed steps for creating effective short presentations for professional use. His topics included organizing content, using story to connect people on a personal level, speak conversationally, and build rapport with the audience.

The audience was polled to determine future professional development opportunities and the effectiveness of Zoom as a platform for future meetings.

Simone Keith spoke about 3-day workshops on creating video presentations that she and Bryce Lane are offering across the state.
